“A Fresh Start”

Characterizing the 1989-90 academic year as the beginning of a new era, Kentucky State University Interim President Mary L. Smith challenged students and faculty to strive for academic excellence and moral purpose.

“We have all been given the opportunity for a fresh start,” said Smith, referring to the KSU Board of Regents, the administration, the faculty, the staff and the students. The challenge before the university, said Smith, is in maintaining the university’s tradition while making a commitment to educational quality.

This new era brought a variety of changes, ranging from tighter housing rules to higher tuition, to the selection of a new president to more cultural recognition of a historically African-American institution. For better or for worse, this is the beginning of a change and, with this, the future looks full of hope for Kentucky State University.

Campus Beauties

Known for their breathtaking beauty and unique architectural designs, all of Kentucky State University's buildings have contributed not only by enhancing campus good looks, but also by providing the structures in which we live, study and learn.

KSU

August-September

The Kentucky State University Board of Regents approved stricter dorm rules.

Dr. Michael Fody, an associate professor in KSU's Division of Literature, Languages and Philosophy, took part in a fact-finding tour of the Central American nation of El Salvador Aug. 13-19.

Interim President Mary L. Smith challenged students and faculty to strive for academic excellence and moral purpose in her remarks during the university's opening convocation on Aug. 24 in Bell Gym.

Bradford Hall was closed for renovation through mid-October.

Calling for unity to make KSU what it ought to be, on Aug. 24 Student Government Association President Corey Bellamy urged the installation of an African-American as permanent president of the university.

Over 15,000 marchers (including KSU students) descended on Washington, D.C., Aug. 26 to protest Supreme Court decisions on affirmative action.

After a campus-wide election plagued with controversy, Anthony Tichenor was elected as the student representative to the KSU Board of Regents, defeating both Tracy Whirls and Richard Tylicki.

After seven months of construction, the amphitheater behind Blazer Library was officially opened with a two-hour outside concert sponsored by the local gospel group Victorious. The participants included dancer Elisa Richey, Kelly Daniels and the KSU Gospel Ensemble, and Tonya Triplett.

Dr. Alvin Poussaint, a psychiatrist and senior associate professor at Harvard University, a consultant to the White House, FBI and State Department on civil rights, families and children, and also consultant for "The Cosby Show," spoke to the university at the Sept. 14 convocation.

KSU's Board of regents moved to disaffiliate the KSU Foundation from the university at a meeting Sept. 22 as a result of "irregularities" revealed in an independent audit.

October-November

Civil rights activist, feminist and the first black woman to serve in the state senate, former Kentucky Senator Georgia Powers of Louisville visited Kentucky State University Oct. 2 as Visiting distinguished Lecturer in Political Science.

The annual Career Fair drew about 70 company representatives.

Students from Africa, Honduras, Mexico, Thailand and Chile gathered in the student center to host their first "International Day."

Former state representative Mae Street Kidd donated a complete great books collection and memorabilia from her 17-year career in the Kentucky House of Representatives to the archives at KSU during a presentation ceremony Oct. 17.

Thomas P. Lewis, a 1959 graduate of KSU, spoke at the Oct. 20 Founders' Day Convocation.

The KSU Board of Regents voted formally to disaffiliate from the KSU Foundation in a meeting Oct. 20.

Marit Williams was crowned Miss KSU for the '89-'90 year on Oct. 20. The coronation was held in Bell Gym due to reconstruction of Bradford Hall auditorium.

The 1989 Homecoming concert, which was held at the Civic Center Oct. 21, featured Terry Tate, surface and rappers D.O.C., Kool Moe D. and Too Short.

The KSU Thorobreds took a beating in the Homecoming game Oct. 21, losing to Johnson C. Smith University's Golden Bulls, 8-31.

K-State held its fourth annual TechFest Nov. 2-3 at Shauntee Hall.

Reginald Gay of the Praise Gospel Music Show performed during KSU's Gospel Extravaganza on Nov. 5.

Tony Brown, talk-show host of "Tony Brown's Journal," film-maker and activist, spoke on the relationship of African-Americans to the American economy and the economy to the rest of the world at the final fall semester convocation on Nov. 16.

December-January

The Ebony Fashion Fair came to the Civic Center on Dec. 6 to display the latest in fashion.

The Kentucky State University Board of regents chairman, Louie Nunn, announced the names of seven of the eight finalists for the university's presidency at a press conference on Jan. 10.

Carl Bernstein, whose coverage of the Watergate scandal helped win The Washington Post a Pulitzer Prize, addressed nearly 300 people in Bradford Hall on Dec. 7.

Interim President Mary L. Smith announced at a KSU Board of Regents meeting on Jan. 5 that K-State would be unconditionally reaccredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Three KSU athletes, Melanie Thomas, Andy Chambers and Shawn Kiett, received honors from the Great Lakes Valley Conference. This was KSU's first year of competition in the GLVC.

Interim President Mary L. Smith opened the spring semester with an upbeat speech on Jan. 18. She revealed that the number of freshmen on academic probation dropped from 46 percent for fall 1988 to 23 percent for fall 1989.

Governor Wallace Wilkinson promised to sign the bill making Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday a state holiday as soon as it passed the state Senate.

Students marched from campus to the state Capitol to commemorate Martin Luther King's 61st birthday and to protest the fact that the state had yet to make the observance a state holiday.

The KSU Board of Regents narrowed the field of presidential candidates down to three.

Former ambassador Donald B. Easum, once head of the African-American Institute, spoke at convocation on Jan. 25.

February-March

Student-government presidents from Kentucky's eight public universities expressed their support for gov. Wallace Wilkinson's tax proposals at a Capitol Annex press conference on higher education Jan. 25.

Dr. O. S. Dathorne, professor of African and Caribbean studies at the University of Kentucky, spoke about blacks uniting and working together toward common goals during the first African-American History Month convocation Feb. 1.

Debbye Turner, Miss America 1990, spoke before a crowd of some 1,000 people on Feb. 7. Entertainment was provided by dancers from the Kuji-chagalia Dance Troupe, singers Tonya Triplett and Finesse, as well as Miss America herself.

Dr. Na'im Akbar, Psychologist from Florida State University, said at convocation Feb. 9 that African-Americans must regain the courage of their free past and challenge the system which continues to oppress them.

Dr. Jan Carew, anthropologist and author of Black Midas, told a KSU audience Feb. 8 during the African-American History Month that it should separate the historical facts from the myths about Columbus discovering the New World.

Dr. Ivan Van Sertima, professor of African studies at Rutgers University, gave a lecture on "The African Origins of Egyptian Civilization" at the Feb. 13 convocation during African-American History Month.

George James, Jr., formerly of North Carolina A&T University, was named KSU's ninth football coach in the past 10 years.

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson signed a bill making the third Monday in January a state holiday honoring the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Dr. John Wolfe Jr., provost and vice president for academic affairs at Bowie State University in Maryland, was unanimously selected as the next president of KSU in a Board of Regents meeting on March 9.

April-May

The KSU All-Star challenge team advanced to the national finals in Washington, D.C. April 5-10.

Students of Young Hall vandalized the dorm by ripping out tiles, and sinks, cutting wires on P.A. speakers, shattering hall clocks, breaking fire extinguishers, damaging furniture and carpeting and setting fires to garbage cans.

The relationships between science, technology and religious ideas were the focus of KSU's first annual interdisciplinary conference, held April 6-7 at the Capital Plaza Hotel in downtown Frankfort.

For a second year straight the Thorobred News staff members won ten awards for Division B Schools at the annual Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association Convention, hosted by Henderson Community College in Henderson, KY.

KSU presented an Earth Day Convocation at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, April 17 in the Amphitheater. The speaker was Arthur L. Williams, Commissioner of Environmental Protection, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Mr. Williams gave an overview of environmental problems, achievements, and prospects in Kentucky.

In Memoriam

Derrick T. Harris

Derrick Harris was a freshman here at K-State from Detroit, MI. His life was taken away over Thanksgiving break when he died of a gunshot wound due to being at "the wrong place at the wrong time," according to Track Coach David Boyd.

In Detroit, Derrick was a state champion and high school All-American in track and field at Coolie High School. He was an "outstanding student who had great potential" said Boyd. His death was a "loss" and a "waste of talent."

The 1990-91 track season will be dedicated to him, and there will be a Derrick Harris scholarship fund in his honor.

KSU

“Oh No, Registration”

Every semester students take part in the most frustrating experience at K-State — registration. It never seems to change — “I didn’t get enough financial aid”; “My loan hasn’t come in yet”; “I have been waiting here for five hours and they still haven’t called my name.” The list of complaints goes on and on. However, here most students were captured in a more playful mood.

“Walk”

Once registration's over, school gets into full swing. It's walk, walk, walk to the next classroom or next destination.

“A Place To Call Home . . .”

The campus is a place to study for many, but it is also a place to meet, think, reflect and concentrate on assignments for others. Our campus encompasses a sort of small world. It is a place that we could not do without because it is where most of our knowledge is gained and knowledge is power.

While classes and studying claim a major portion of their lives, some students seem to find "real life" elsewhere. Whether it is chillin' with the crowd, hanging from a mountain, cruising on a motor scooter, posing for a camera, flying high with a karate kick, swinging from a tree or relaxing with the boys, there's always the making of fun.

... More Fun

Hanging out is the favorite pastime on the yard. Everybody wants to be seen. Whether they are feeding their face, free styling on a bike, shooting a little pool, ping ponging, relaxing, or just goofing off, students can always find some kind of enjoyment at K-State.

A Kaleidoscope

Indeed, student life is far more than the daily grind. It's also the Kaleidoscope of activities and events planned just for the students' social adjustment, cultural enlightenment or simply entertainment.

Guest Speakers

K-State has had a host of convocation guest speakers who have spoken on a variety of educational issues.

Dr. Alvin Poussaint, a well-known psychiatrist and senior associate professor at Harvard University and a consultant to the famed "Cosby Show," White House, FBI and State Department on civil rights, families and children, is most noted for his studies in black psychology and race relations. He spoke at Sept. 14 convocation.

Poussaint stressed the importance of education for black minorities.

Talk-Show host, film-maker and activist Tony Brown spoke at the final convocation for the fall semester on Nov. 16. The theme was "Global Perspective On Values."

Dr. George C. Wright spoke on race relations in Kentucky after the Civil War at the Nov. 9 convocation.

Ambassador Donald B. Easum spoke about African awareness and the foreign aid the U.S. must commit to at Jan. 25 convocation.

The relationships between science, technology and religious ideas were the focus of KSU's first annual interdisciplinary conference, held April 6-7 at the Capital Plaza Hotel in downtown Frankfort. The speaker was Dr. Frederick Ferre, research professor of philosophy at the University of Georgia at Athens. These are just a few of the speakers who spoke at the convocations.

"A Dream Come True"

February 7, 1990 was a night to remember for Kentucky State University when Miss America, Debbie Turner, made a guest appearance on the campus. Miss Turner, a talented marimba player and veterinary student, spoke to students on reaching their goals. She instilled confidence in the crowd by stressing that one's background or "color" does not determine future success. Her theme was "Motivating Youth to Excellence."

Miss Turner said, before a crowd of over 1,000 in Bradford Hall Auditorium, that becoming Miss America was a dream come true for her. It was also a dream come true for K-State students to have the beautiful and talented Miss Turner to come and entertain. She inspired the audience with her rendition of "Rapping for Jesus", versions of "God Bless America", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic", tales of the road to being crowned Miss America, tips on reaching personal goals, and notes for surviving everyday.

Miss Turner stated that what she would like to tell young people is "to be yourself and in being yourself be the best you could possibly be. Pursue your dreams with excellence." She summed up her visit by stating, "If I could convince a child no matter what color you are, or where you come from to succeed, then being Miss America becomes relevant."

Voices From Black

Fear, dependency, self-rejection and limited vision, all vestiges of the plantation mentality, have caused African-Americans to remain enslaved nearly 150 years after slavery was abolished. To escape the plantation mentality, Dr. Na'im Akbar, psychologist from Florida State University, said at convocation Feb. 9, African-Americans must regain the courage of their free past and challenge the system which continues to oppress them.

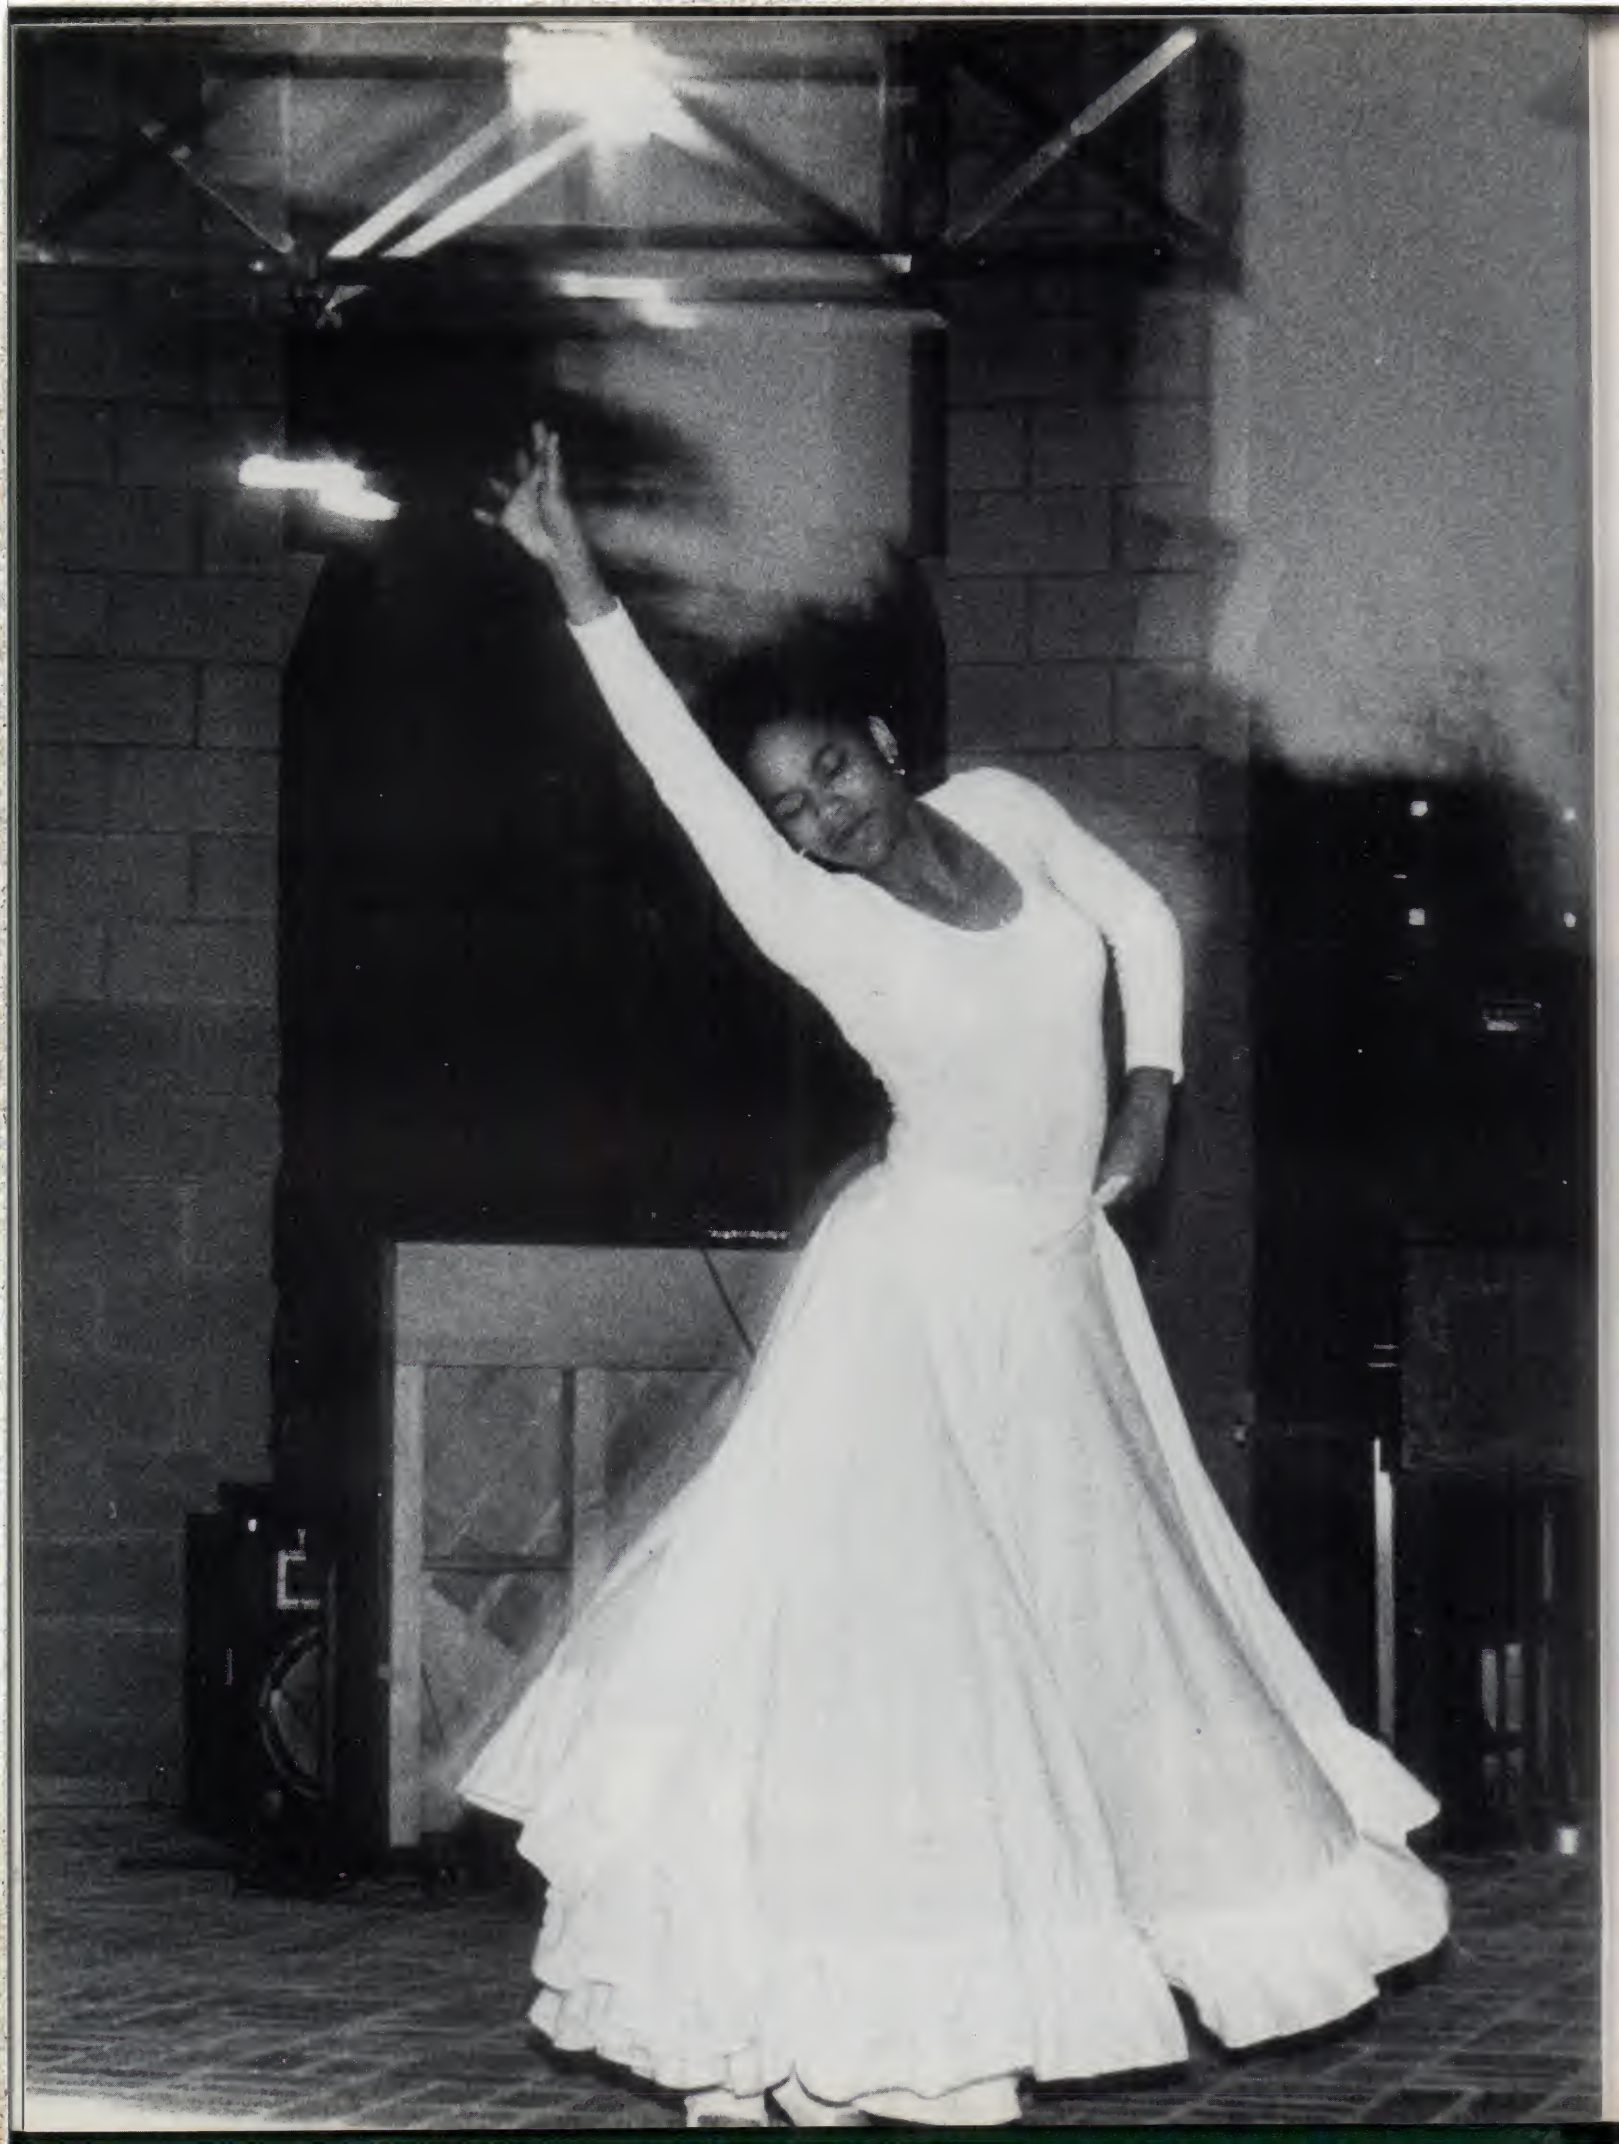

Ancient Africans were smelting iron and producing fine-bloom carbon steel 1,500 years ago in Tanzania. The ancestors of the Dogon in now-legendary Timbuktu plotted the orbit of a star not visible to the naked eye, and their projections of its orbit are accurate to 1990. Nubians were using tetracycline 14 centuries ago. A pharaonic dynasty existed in Nubia 200 years before the Egyptian pharaohs, many of whom, including Ramses II and Tutankhamen, were African. These and other facts concerning the contributions of Africans to Western civilization have been largely ignored, according to Dr. Ivan Van Sertima, professor of African studies at Rutgers University, who gave a lecture on "The African Origins of Egyptian Civilization" Feb. 13.

History Month

Dr. Jan Carew, anthropologist and author of Black Midas, told a KSU audience Feb. 8, that as America prepares to celebrate the 500th anniversary of Columbus's historic voyage, we must first separate the historical facts from the myths that have grown up around the man.

Despite the myths that credit Columbus with discovering the New World, Carew said, anthropologists have determined that many people, including ancient Egyptians and Carthaginians, had made the voyage previously.

Music News

Academics is not the only thing that goes on at KSU. A variety of entertainment is provided for the K-State students. Many guest appearances and talent shows were presented due to Leslie Thomas and the staff of Student Life. Singer Jane Powell performed in concert at the Bell Gymnasium. Ms. Powell has been nominated for the 1989 campus artist of the year.

Broadway singer and dancer Jennifer Lewis came on Feb. 28 as well as comedian A. J. Jamal.

Before a crowd of some 1,000, Miss America entered under a saber arch and proceeded to be entertained by the dancers from the Kujichagalia troop, Elisa Richey, Stephanie Thomas, Juanita Allen and singers Tonya Triplett and Finesse. In the 2nd Annual Mr. and Miss Fashion, Stephanie Thomas and Harry Patton were announced the winners of the show.

Talent shows were also sponsored by the NAACP and the Freshmen class. Students from Africa, Honduras, Mexico, Thailand and Chile gathered in the student center to host their first "International Day" to allow students and staff the opportunity to experience the culture of their countries. The first Miss Black Frankfort Pageant was held in Bradford Hall Auditorium.

After seven months of construction, the amphitheater behind Blazer Library was officially opened with a two-hour outside concert sponsored by the local gospel group Victorious. Over 300 students turned out to take part in the evening of music, dance and inspirational song. The participants included dancer Elisa Richey, Kelly Daniels and the KSU Gospel Ensemble, and Tonya Triplett.

A group of KSU students gathered together to attend an African dance workshop conducted by Harlina Churn. Churn, a native of Louisville, founded the Imani African-American dance company ensemble in Louisville.

The group Churn formed on campus is named Kujichagalia, which is Swahili for self-determination.

The 32nd Annual Ebony Fashion Fair presented Fashion Magic 89/90 at the Civic Center. The show was sponsored by ABONGO as a benefit for the South Frankfort Youth Center.

The KSU Gospel Extravaganza included the Praise Gospel Music Show (broadcast on Lexington radio 1300 AM), Es-sences, Victorious, Finesse, as well as KSU's Gospel Ensemble.

Student Life also provided movies that were seen on campus: Lethal Weapon II, Beaches, Everybody's All-American, My Stepmother is an Alien, Batman and Parenthood.

Miki Howard

Spring Concert

The Student Government Association "got busy" for both spring and gospel concerts. Presented at the spring concert was Ms. Miki Howard, who brought down the house with "Baby Be Mine," "Imagination" and "Love Under New Management." Also performing was David Peaston, who dashed out hits such as "God Bless the Child," "Take Me Now," "We're All In This Together" and "Two Wrongs (Don't Make It Right)." Renee Giddens and Margot Demarce with Essences were the opening acts for the spring concert.

*David

The Winans

Gospel Concert

Presented at the gospel concert were Grammy Award winners The Winans, who belted out such tunes as "Time To Make A Change," "Millions," "You're The Only Thing Right - Left In A Wrong World" and "Tomorrow," among other hits. Opening and featured was KSU's own Gospel Ensemble and Victorious as well as WTLA Gospel Ensemble of Lexington, KY.

The Career Fair was held October 4 in the Bell Gym. I.B.M., Bell South, Humana and Kroger were some of the companies represented out of about 70. K.S.U. has had a co-op program since 1973. AT & T employee Danee Shelby, formerly in K.S.U.'s co-op, said, "My experience as a co-op student went really well because it helped me make money while in college . . ."

On Oct. 2 the AT&T Corp. presented a workshop forum here at KSU for computer science majors and other interested students. AT&T rep. Don Miller gave a presentation entitled "Success in a Corporate Environment." KSU student Terry Johnson spoke of the importance of co-op internship. Many students were impressed by the presentation.

Over 15,000 marchers descended on Washington, D.C. Aug. 26 to protest recent Supreme Court decisions on affirmative action. The march was organized by the NAACP. The United Mine Workers of America, the Japanese-American Citizens' League, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Organization of Black Airline Pilots were among the 200 groups that participated in the historic event.

Forty-two students from Kentucky State University and local high schools took a step into history by attending the silent march on the nation's capital.

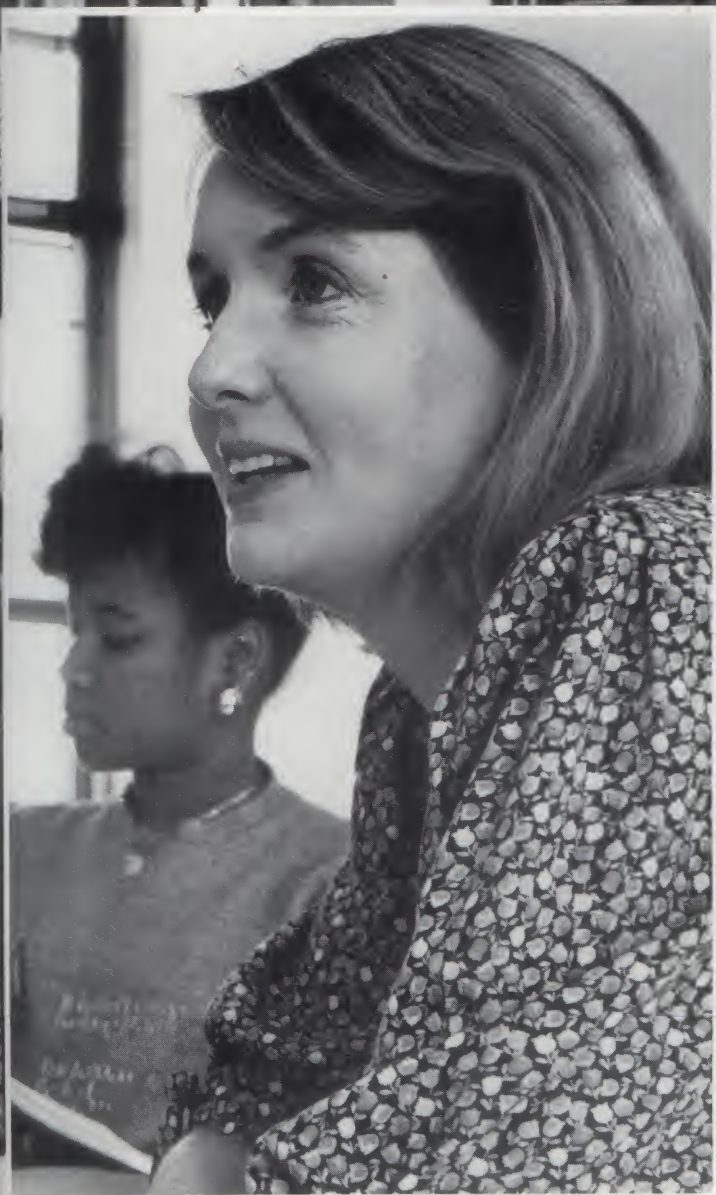

KSU

Honors Convocation is a Success.

Dr. Alan Lansing, KSU regent and director of the Humana Heart Institute of Kentucky, has a simple formula for success in life: Discover and develop your talents, learn the value of hard work, set goals but be flexible enough to take advantage of opportunities, and stick with it.

Lansing shared his secret for success with students, faculty and others during KSU's 27th annual Honors Convocation April 18.

Some 200 students received departmental and university recognition for academic excellence during the convocation. Criminal justice social work major Mary Howard received the President's Award for having the highest GPA. Student Government Association President Corey Bellamy received the Mayor's Citizenship award from Frankfort Mayor Mickey Mills.

“The Challenge”

The 1989-90 academic school year began with a challenge proposed by interim President Mary L. Smith at the university's opening convocation on Aug. 24, 1989 in Bell Gym. The challenge was to maintain the university's tradition while making a commitment to educational quality.

President Smith's view was that, in retrospect, Kentucky State University's academics had not been “up to par.” The records showed an academic downturn. Action was taken; many students were placed on academic probation. At the end of the spring semester, 80 freshmen were suspended for poor performance and 84 were placed on academic probation. “This, my friends, has been the trend for the last four years,” Smith said. “It is now the 1989-90 academic year. We have all been given the opportunity for a fresh start.”

Many students took President Smith's challenge and put the past behind them while at the same time taking long bounds toward their academic goals.

Giddens and Richey Take Over

Vanessa Rene Giddens, 23, a senior music education major from Frankfort, was elected president of KSU's Student Government Assoc., the first woman in more than seven years to serve in that capacity.

When asked why she decided to run for the presidency, Giddens said there are many problems on campus that need to be addressed by someone who is an effective communicator.

Giddens said that she doesn't expect being SGA president to be easy, nor does she expect everyone to like her for what she has to say. Among the goals for her administration are reappraisals of the IGS program, which she views as unresponsive to the needs of students, a strengthening of developmental studies and student support services, and the creation of more recreational options for students.

Giddens plans to face her goals with the same determination that has enabled her to reach senior status while raising two children alone.

In fact, all of the key student government offices went to women. Also elected were:

Vice president: Anjanette Vickers, 22, a senior English Major from Louisville.

Treasurer: Melissa Furch, 21, a junior biology major from Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Secretary: Latanya Ford, 21, a junior business administration major from Danville, Ky.

Miss KSU: Elisa Nicole Richey, 22, a junior music education major from East Cleveland, Ohio.

The Kentucky State Football team suffered through another losing season in 1989, posting only two wins in eleven contests. One of the two wins, however, came in the upset variety with the 'Breds edging perennial power Ft. Valley State in the finale.

Individual standouts for K.S.U. were senior Jon Brown (WR), Juniors Emmerich Langham (RB) and Sylvester Brown (LB) and freshman quarterback Donald Catlett.

Women's Basketball

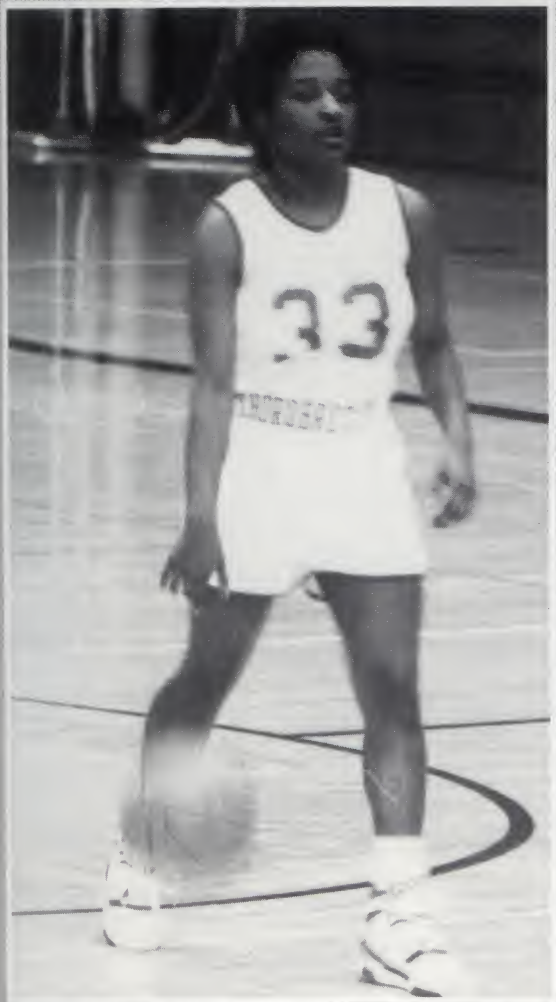

'Brettes struggle through trying campaign

Kentucky State's women's basketball team fell on hard times in '89-90, posting only 3 wins in 27 contests. Going up against three Division I teams and several top-ranked Division II teams in the first part of the season, KSU never got out of the starting gate completely and couldn't match the 16-12 record of the year before.

However, three seniors took over the spotlight after the loss of '89 All American Pat Holland. Tracy Thomas, Bridget Canales and Marjorie Creswell were consistent all season and averaged 15-4, 14-7 and 11-9 points respectively. Thomas, who was named second team All - GLVC, led the team in rebounds, and blocks, in addition to points, and ended her career at KSU as one of the all time leading rebounders.

Other prominent performances were put in by Melanie Thomas, Dara Loftion and Shannon White in key support roles.

A ROLLERCOASTER RIDE

After winning four of their first six games for the second straight season, the KSU men's basketball team lost eight of their next ten on their way to a 9-19 won-lost record.

First-year coach William Graham fielded a very young team in '89-'90, having eight freshmen on the squad with only four players returning. The situation took an even bigger turn for the worse when two of their highest scorers, Shawn Kielt and Daryl Royster, were off the team by January.

However, Junior transfer Andy Chambers stepped forward and led the Thorobreds in scoring and rebounds en route to All-Conference (GLVC), all district and team MVP honors. The Frankfort product averaged 20 points and 10.6 rebounds.

Guard Dennis Hanna led the team in assists (5.1) while scoring 14.7 points a game. Freshmen Toby Joseph and Cedric Fuller averaged 9.8 and 7.1 points, respectively, while senior Mike Shoulders finished his career averaging 7 points and 4 rebounds a game.

With twelve of fourteen players returning and a good recruiting class coming, Coach Graham is very optimistic for the '90-'91 season.

The Season That Wasn't

Coach Ron Braden's Thorobrettes jumped out of the starting gate in '89, winning the Oakland City (IN) Invitational. But injuries to key players Jackie Bone and Stacey Hill slowed the pace down and gave KSU a below average but respectable 11-24 mark.

Sophomore Melanie Thomas stepped up, however, and gave Braden something to look forward to in the next two years. The outside hitter from Cincinnati, Ohio captured All GLVC honors as well as team most valuable player. Thomas recorded 243 kills and 128 aces in her unique "high flying" way.

Senior Corinda Thomas recorded 207 kills while freshman Donnietta Reese added 181. Sandra Kjelland led the team with 1196 assists (an avg. of 11.39).

With the return of Thomas, Hill and Reese and several new recruits, Braden hopes '90 will be a successful season.

Track team headed for greatness

The 1989-90 Kentucky State University Thorobred Track Team ran like the young stallions they were. This all freshman team finished with a 6-0 record in dual meets competing against teams like Clark, Morehouse, Prairie View and Jackson State. Masai Troutman took his abilities to the NCAA Division II championships in Virginia. These track Thorobreds competed against great teams like Texas Southern, Florida A&M, U of L, and U of K. Coach Boyd believes strongly that the team is upcoming and headed for greatness.

The K-State cross-country team competed hard last season to finish 8th out of 10 in Division II. They were led by their #1 distance runner, Albert Long, and by Chris Sanders. The women's team was led by their #1 runner, Kwana Reddick. They competed against such teams as Northern Kentucky and Kentucky Wesleyan.

Competitive Season for Tennis

Coach Carolyn Walker led the competitive young teams into tennis action during the Spring.

Men's team members are Roderique Russell, Julian Bond, Frank Livingston, James Jackson, Jon Brown, Brian Sims, Char-Bonnett Gittens and Carl Anderson.

Golf Team Improves

Coach Eddie Morris hopes to lead the Thorobred golf team into an improved season by building a reputable program at KSU.

The golf team members are Randall Bridgeman, David Cammack, Charles Etherington, Chris McDonald, Eric Scott Sizemore and Jeff Robinson.

"Steppin' Out In Style"

Kentucky State University Homecoming 1989

The 1989 Kentucky State University homecoming was a huge success due to the talented students who comprise our school organizations and the support of our successful alumni. Once again Kentucky State was creative, original and dynamic in its half-time homecoming entertainment. The talented and beautiful K-rettes were enough alone to provide school excitement and inspiration to many. The skillful performing of the Kentucky State marching band moved the audience to dancing in their seats. The support of students, faculty, alumni and other fans can be counted upon to always make Homecoming the most enjoyable event of the year.

Miss Kentucky State University

A Positive Example

Manners, Availability, Responsibility, Intelligence, Talents, Willingness, Individuality, Love, Leadership, Involvement, Ambition, Meekness and Style are just a few of many words to describe the 1989-90 Miss Kentucky State University. Put the words together and one would truly have a positive example: Miss Marit Williams. This unique individual is adored for her carefree and down to earth spirit.

A senior social work major and a native of Dayton, Ohio, Miss Williams holds true to a philosophy that has brought her a source of strength: "Acknowledge Christ in all you do and He will direct your path."

Miss Williams, who plans to attend grad school in Ohio after graduation, said that although she encountered some "road blocks" as a student at KSU, they have all "turned out to be blessings because they have helped me grow."

"Examples speak louder than words"

Miss KPH

Deneia Best First Attendant

"With desire, determination, dedication and faith in God, anything is possible" is Deneia Best's motto. Best, a senior psychology major, is a native of Lexington, Ky, and the daughter of Karen and James Best, Jr.

After graduation from KSU, Best plans to attend graduate school and pursue a doctorate in psychology. She eventually plans to teach.

While at Kentucky State, Best has participated in several activities. She has served as NAACP secretary and junior class secretary; she has sung in the Gospel Ensemble and she has been a member of Delta Sigma Theta, as well as having been appointed to several committees.

Dawn Morgan Second Attendant

Working hard and retaining a sense of direction to pursue a goal is a philosophy of Dawn Michelle Morgan.

Morgan, a senior psychology major, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and raised in Frankfort, Ky. She is the oldest daughter of Neville and Constance Morgan.

After graduating from Kentucky State, Morgan plans to attend graduate school to pursue a doctorate and a career in clinical psychology.

While attending KSU, Morgan has participated in the NAACP, has been treasurer of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, and has participated in several committees.

It's a Rap Thing!

Rapper Kool Moe Dee in action at K-State's Homecoming concert. Also at the concert were Rappers D.O.C. and Too Short, along with Terry Tate and Surface.

You wouldn't understand.

Commencement, 200 graduates

Dr. Shien Biau Woo, professor of physics at the University of Delaware, former lieutenant governor and Democratic candidate for the Senate in 1988, was the keynote speaker at KSU's commencement, May 12 at the Farnham Dudgeon Civic Center in downtown Frankfort.

Some 200 KSU students received degrees during the university's 101st commencement. In addition to awarding bachelor's and master's degrees, the university awarded honorary doctorates to Dr. James Letton, a KSU alum and research chemist at Procter and Gamble, and Thelma N. Johnson, also an alum, who has been a long-term music instructor in Ashland. Professor emeritus Henry Cheaney, a 1936 graduate of KSU, was recognized as the top alumni of the century as part of K-State's observance of 100 years as a land grant institution.

ADMINISTRATION

KSU

Wolfe is KSU's 10th president

Dr. John T. Wolfe, Jr., provost and vice president for academic affairs at Bowie State University (Md.), was unanimously selected as the next president of Kentucky State University in a Board of Regents meeting March 9.

Wolfe was born in 1942 in Jackson, Mississippi. His education began in Chicago, Ill., where he attended elementary and secondary school and earned a Bachelor of Education degree from Chicago Teachers College in 1964. After graduation, he taught English in Chicago Public Schools and worked with students in the Roosevelt University Upward Bound Program.

Dr. Wolfe next served for two and one-half years with Upward Bound at Cuttington College in Liberia, West Africa. While there, he taught Linguistics and held a number of Administrative Positions, including Dean of Men and Chairman of the Faculty Senate.

Upon returning to the U.S. in 1970, Dr. Wolfe attended Purdue University. While earning a Master of Science Degree and Ph.D. in Linguistics, he held full-time positions at the University as a Housing Officer and Employee Relations Manager.

In 1977, Dr. Wolfe became Assistant Professor of English at Fayetteville State University in North Carolina. During his time at Fayetteville, he worked his way up through the administrative ranks, from English Department Head to Humanities and the Fine Arts Division Head to Academic Dean. He won Fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Council on Education. In 1985, Dr. Wolfe became provost and vice-president for Academic Affairs at Bowie State University in Maryland. He served on the Bowie New Town Center Minority Advisory Board and as Chairman of the Advisory Board on the Prince George's County Entrepreneurial Development program. Dr. Wolfe is a member of the National Council of Teachers of English. In addition, he has written and delivered over 30 scholarly articles and presentations. During his visit to the university Feb. 27, Wolfe said that the word "unique" is central to his vision of KSU and its future under his direction. He said, "We can make this a community like no other among the 3,500 institutions of higher learning in this country, where black, white, Asian, Hispanic students can live together, study together, play together, disagree vehemently and yet reach a consensus and build upon it." He assumed his position on July 1, 1990.
